A Garden of Herbal Delights

Herbs have been with us since the beginning of time. Before recorded history, when humankind foraged as hunter-gatherers, we relied on our ability to harvest plants from the wild to survive. Advancing our civilization, we discovered a variety of uses for the plants we share our planet with, from food to crafting materials, from medicine to perfume. So many things have changed throughout history about the way we live our lives, but our strong relationship with herbs remains.

OUR TEA PACKAGING

Our teas are packed in a variety of gram-weight sizes, including a sample size that yields approximately three to six cups of tea. Samples provide a great opportunity to try our teas and find new favorites.

Our silver poly-foil packets are heat-sealed to preserve freshness. Smaller sizes are resealable with a convenient zip-lock closure. When ordering the largest size packets (-H and -K), we recommend dispensing a portion of the tea into a small canister, which can serve for daily use. Select teas are also offered in a plug-top, British-style tea tin (-T). We suggest ordering only the amount of tea that will be consumed in three to six months.

We will gladly personalize your tea packet with your name or the name of your gift recipient. This personalization is free of charge and adds a wonderful personal touch to your tea.

Derived from plant-based starch, our packaging “peanuts” are 100% biodegradable in warm water or your compost. Our boxes are made from 100% recycled material.

OVERALL SATISFACTION GUARANTEE

We have one simple goal: to be your source of fine teas for many years. To that end, we strive to ensure that every experience with Upton Tea Imports is 100% to your satisfaction.

All of our teas come with a complete customer satisfaction guarantee. If you are not pleased with a tea for any reason, kindly let us know within 30 days of receiving your order. If we made an error in fulfilling your order, we will correct it immediately. If the tea is not what you expected, you may return the unused portion within 30 days, and we will issue a credit for the purchase price of the tea. With over 400 teas on our extensive list, we know that not every tea will be pleasing to every palate. To avoid unnecessary disappointment, we suggest trying a sample size first if you are unfamiliar with one of our teas.

UPTON TEA IMPORTS ORGANIC CERTIFICATION

Upton Tea Imports is certified by Baystate Organic Certifiers as a handler and repacker of organic teas. Under the guidelines of the USDA National Organic Program (NOP), we only label teas as organic if they are NOP certified.

NILGIRI TEAS
NILGIRI DISTRICT BLACK TEAS
Grown on small tea farms tucked into the mountains at the southern tip of India, Nilgiri black teas offer exceptionally smooth, bright flavor. Their unique terroir — hilly altitudes in a subtropical setting — gives them two annual tea-plucking seasons, which fall in between the famous Indian monsoons.
KAIRBETTA ESTATE SFTGFOP1 2025 ‘WINTER FROST’ NILGIRI With its fresh floral aroma and complex flavor, the bright amber-gold cup of this early 2025 ‘Winter Frost’ Nilgiri black tea is the perfect way to welcome a feeling of spring. The aroma is redolent with notes of butter cookie, sweet summer corn, and spring wildflowers. A smooth mouthfeel embroiders a creaminess across the layers of flowers, honey, corn silk, and hay, complemented by a vegetal undertone. The sleek finish lingers with an enveloping sweetness, with a flavor profile very similar to that of a first flush Darjeeling.				TN73S Sample $3.75	TN73D 60g $26.25
GLENDALE ESTATE ‘ORANGE TWIST’ NILGIRI Perched at elevations ranging 5,400 to 7,000 feet in the Nilgiri Hills of southern India, the Glendale Estate offers this distinctive black tea with long, twisted leaves that steep a beautiful amber liquor. The light toasty aroma is fragrant with hints of almond and oak, complemented by a sweet smoky whisper. The bright, lively cup refreshes with notes of stone fruit, citrus, and almond. Hints of spice bring a bittersweet nuance to the lingering finish.			TN71S Sample $4.25	TN71 80g $30.50	TN71D 160g $58.00

FEATURED FORMOSA OOLONG TEAS

SUN MOON LAKE TEA (RUBY 18)
The long, dark, wiry leaves yield a complex, hearty liquor with a velvety smooth mouthfeel. The fragrant aroma reveals layers of cinnamon, raisin, fig, vanilla, and plum, which harmonize with notes of bread pudding and baked apple and a subtle malty hint in the full-bodied cup. A lingering caramelized brown-sugar note provides a complement to a crisp snap of clove in the finish. Steep longer for deeper flavor and a stronger cup.

TEAS OF AFRICA
KENYAN TEAS
The Kenya Highlands, located on both sides of the Great Rift Valley in Central Kenya, offer an ideal climate for growing tea all year: long, sunny days near the equator, volcanic red soil, and abundant rainfall. Their robust black teas, full-bodied like an Assam, are superb for breakfast. The unique purple tea cultivar, with high concentrations of anthocyanin and its antioxidant effects, was discovered 30 years ago, and is now cultivated by small-scale farmers and prized by many.
 GOLDEN KENYA GFBOP Sold in either bold broken-leaf or whole-leaf, depending upon availability. The cup has a full flavor and aroma, with a medium body. May be enjoyed on its own, but it is strong enough to accommodate a touch of milk. A brisk character with a hint of rose.	TK25S Sample $2.00	TK25 100g $6.25	TK25T 100g Tin $8.25	TK25D 200g $11.75	TK25H 400g $23.00
KENYA PURPLE LEAF TEA This rare purple tea is grown at high altitudes in the Mount Kenya region of Kenya. High levels of anthocyanin, a flavonoid pigment also found in blueberries, cause the leaves to display a purple tinge. The pale purple-bronze cup exhibits pronounced juicy stone fruit notes in both the aroma and liquor. A sweet, earthy fragrance hints of a fresh garden and a ripe cantaloupe. A silky smooth mouthfeel supports a flavor profile layered with hints of tropical fruit, strawberries, and flowers. The finish is lively and lingering, with a nuance of crisp white wine. We offered this unique Kenyan purple tea in honor of our 35th anniversary.			TK45S Sample $2.75	TK45 80g $18.25	TK45D 160g $35.75
MOZAMBICAN TEAS
Located on the southern coast of Africa, the Republic of Mozambique’s fertile soil and temperate climate make it ideal for organic tea cultivation. The black teas produced are rich and full-bodied, with a toasty aroma and sweet, fruity flavor.
 MOZAMBIQUE OP1 BLACK TEA ORGANIC Cultivated at the Monte Metilile Estate on the lower slopes of Mount Namuli, this organic tea selection from Mozambique yields a velvety smooth, dark-amber liquor that is rich and full-bodied. A warm toasty aroma and dark-sugar sweetness contribute to a satisfying cup with a substantial mouthfeel and lingering finish.			TK44S Sample $2.25	TK44 100g $12.25	TK44D 200g $23.25
SEASON’S PICK MOZAMBIQUE BREAKFAST BLEND ORGANIC From the Monte Metilile Estate, small, well-made leaves produce a smooth, robust breakfast blend with a toasty aroma and rich mouthfeel. TEAS OF CEYLON
Ceylon — or modern-day Sri Lanka — has one of the world’s oldest tea empires. Scottish tea planter James Taylor introduced the first tea plantation to Ceylon in 1867, where the teas thrived in the cool, humid climate. The tea-growing regions of Sri Lanka are clustered mostly among the mountains of the island’s central region and its southern foothills. Like the great wine-growing regions of France, the tea country of Sri Lanka is divided into seven strictly defined districts, each of which is known for producing teas of a particular character. Each district presents a unique combination of climate and terrain that leaves its mark on the tea it produces.

WHISKY BARREL SMOKED JAPANESE BLACK TEA - CHERRY WOOD

Produced at a small family tea garden in Shizuoka, Japan, this unique black tea is smoked for 6-8 hours using wood chips from a Japanese cherry wood whisky barrel. With layers of smoke, Burgundy, and hints of floral sweetness, the aroma is reminiscent of a warm charcoal fire. A buttery mouthfeel and hints of toffee complement the pronounced smoky notes in the smooth, rich cup. That smoky character is joined by a prevailing sweetness that lingers long after the last sip.

JUNGPANA ESTATE SECOND FLUSH FTGFOP1 (2024 DJ-121) WHITE DARJEELING

Handcrafted using time-honored traditional methods, this exquisite Darjeeling white tea is composed of predominantly silver-sage buds covered in fine, silky hairs. The champagne-colored cup is fragrant with notes of honey, pear, and honeysuckle. A full, buttery smooth mouthfeel embraces notes of melon and a vegetal sweetness reminiscent of fresh spring flowers. This rich sweetness lingers in the clean finish, completing an exemplary tea experience.

CHINESE OOLONG DA HONG PAO

Da Hong Pao, or "Big Red Robe," is a famous Chinese Oolong tea with a colorful pedigree. The very large leaves are perfect for multiple infusions. Subsequent steepings will produce varying levels of stone fruit and honey notes. The aroma is fruity and fragrant with a hint of sweet spring flowers. A lingering vegetal sweetness is noted in the finish, along with a crisp, clean hint reminiscent of dry white wine.

CHINESE WHITE JASMINE SILVER NEEDLES

This premium Jasmine Silver Needles white tea is made entirely of the tender buds of a large-leaf cultivar from the spring harvest in Yunnan province. These young buds are then naturally scented with fresh jasmine flowers over five consecutive nights. The sugar-sweet aroma has a sublime jasmine/osmanthus fragrance. The pale-golden cup is light and airy, with a pronounced jasmine scent, reminiscent of a lush garden's fragrance at the height of summer. A silky smooth, refreshing finish completes a memorable tea experience. The perfect choice for a winter uplift!

A Garden of Herbal Delights

By Stef S., Tea Consultant

Herbs have been with us since the beginning of time. Before recorded history, when humankind foraged as hunter-gatherers, we relied on our ability to harvest plants from the wild to survive. Advancing our civilization, we discovered a variety of uses for the plants with which we share our planet, from food and crafting materials to medicine and perfume. Many things have changed throughout history in the way we live our lives, but our strong relationship with herbs remains. They live in pots on our windowsills, in bottles on our spice racks, and in tins in our tea cupboards. Join us today on a stroll through our herb garden, where we will learn about seven fascinating herbs and the delicious infusions (tisanes) they produce.

BH46: Peppermint Organic
(Mentha x piperita)

The summer sun shines brightly in a backyard flower garden, branches and stems rustling in the breeze. Nestled among the lilies and hydrangeas, a little green herb with broad leaves and white flowers takes refuge in the shade. While the blossoms are edible, the fragrant peppermint leaves are the most desirable; the heat of the sun gently warms the oils in the leaves, producing a cool, minty scent. This iconic herb is grown not only in our backyards and homes in the US but also all around the world, where it has thrived across the continents for thousands of years. The consumption of peppermint can be traced back to ancient Greece, where it was referenced in the writings of Aristotle and Alexander the Great. The Greeks named the mint plant after the mythical nymph Minthe, a lover of Hades, god of the underworld. When she passed away, Hades immortalized her by transforming her into a fragrant plant. Peppermint oil housed in the leaves and stems gives the herb its signature flavor and aroma.

Infuse dried peppermint leaves in hot water and then add citrus, cucumber, or melon slices for a refreshing summer beverage.

BH106: Rama Tulsi
(Holy Basil, Ocimum tenuiflorum)

Tall stalks of light purple flowers stand out against this herb’s broad purple and green leaves. In long, narrow rows, these plants grow in clusters, a strong aroma of spice floating through the air. Tulsi, also known as Holy Basil, is an Indian herb with cultural significance, and a storied history as an ayurvedic botanical widely consumed as a tea for centuries. Tulsi is venerated in the Hindu festival of Tulasi Vivaha, which signifies the end of the monsoon season and the beginning of the wedding season in India. There are four main varieties of Tulsi. At Upton Tea Imports, we offer the Rama variety, with green leaves and a cooling flavor. While it is technically a flowering plant of the mint family, it surprisingly lacks a minty character. Rama Tulsi has been compared to cloves or basil, but neither quite captures its complexity of flavor, with a tangy, savory, and peppery essence. As a culinary herb, the flavor of Tulsi is enhanced by the application of heat, making it the ideal addition to curries. As an iced tisane, its spicy qualities mellow to produce a cooling effect.

BH51: Chamomile Organic

Nestled among palm trees in the Nile River Valley, lush fields of bright white flowers with vivid yellow centers are nourished by rich, fertile soil. Some may mistake them for daisies. They are part of the daisy family; to be more precise, we know this herb as chamomile. The ancient Greek name for this plant, chamaimēlon, has been interpreted to mean “the smell of an apple.” This is fitting, as the blossoms smell sweet but not overly floral, evoking comparisons to fruit and honey. The ancient Egyptians associated the chamomile plant with their sun god, Ra. Featuring bright, sunny yellow discs and delicate petals that flourish despite the scorching heat, it is easy to imagine why. In the 11th century, chamomile appeared in the Tractatus de Herbis (Book of Herbs). Instructions detailing how to prepare the flower for consumption involved boiling it in water. This may be the earliest written recipe for chamomile tea. In medieval times, it was also added to stews. What distinguishes chamomile from many other tisanes is the part of the plant we infuse. When we steep loose chamomile tea, we are steeping the whole flower. The yellow liquor it produces brings warmth and sunshine to tea drinkers to this day. When cooled, the tea’s sweetness intensifies, producing a satisfying floral beverage with a silky smooth mouthfeel. If desired, add honey and serve over ice for a soothing, caffeine-free, sweet herbal tea.

BH65: Lemon Grass, Coarse Cut
(Cymbopogon citratus)

A tall tropical grass with long leaves and yellow stems that sprout out of the brush in large clusters. Grass is not typically a culinary delicacy, but lemongrass is an exception. It produces a sweet lemon scent, and its tender, zesty rootstocks are featured in a variety of Asian cuisines. There are over 50 species of lemongrass, most of which do not flower. While the term citronella is often used interchangeably with lemongrass, it specifically refers to the variety commonly used for soap and mosquito repellent, rather than those used in cuisine. In ancient times, this herbal tea was a common beverage in South America, Egypt,

India, and Southeast Asia. Lemongrass is a key ingredient in Tom Yum, Thailand’s popular hot and sour soup, and Larb, the national dish of Laos. Served iced, this tisane’s light, zesty citrus flavor makes the perfect afternoon refresher.

BH60: Hibiscus Flowers –
Coarse Cut
(Hibiscus sabdariffa)

Leafy beds of vibrant, dark-red flowers on long stalks poke up out of sandy, rocky soil. When dried, the petals are vivid and dark. While it may look a bit different from the common garden variety, this is the flower we call hibiscus.

There are over 200 species of this flowering plant, but as some species are inedible, not all blossoms are fit to become herbal tea. The hibiscus flower is often associated with the lush, tropical islands of Hawaii. While this memorable red flower does flourish in the Aloha State, it has also historically been cultivated in Asia, Africa, and the Pacific Islands. Throughout history, various parts of the flower have been used for food and medicine in different parts of the world. The English name for hibiscus comes from the Greek word hibiskos, which means “marshmallow,” as hibiscus is a flowering plant in the mallow family. Apart from its culinary uses, hibiscus is associated with feminine beauty. In Indian art, hibiscus flowers often appear as a motif alongside Kali, the goddess of time. Hibiscus tea is a rich, burgundy color. Infused from the flower’s sepals or petals, the sweet, tart infusion is hydrating, caffeine-free, and full of antioxidants. As a tangy iced beverage, it is enjoyed around the world, but it is especially popular in Malaysia, where hibiscus is the national flower, and in Senegal, where it is the national beverage. In December 2007 at Tufts University, a double-blind study, The Effect of Hibiscus Sabdariffa L. Tisane on Blood Pressure in Prehypertensive and Mildly Hypertensive Men and Women, suggested that daily consumption of hibiscus tea has a beneficial effect on blood pressure.* Hibiscus tea is traditionally sipped as is, but the addition of sweetener and lime makes for a simple thirst-quenching mocktail.

BH45: Spearmint Organic (Mentha spicata)

Sunlight streams through the tall, opaque windows of a warm greenhouse. The plant that grows here looks like peppermint, but it has brighter, pointier leaves and a more mellow aroma. Avid gardeners with a keen eye can spot the difference. This is spearmint, peppermint’s ancestor. Taste a cup of each of these minty tisanes, side by side, and you will never forget the difference. Like peppermint, the scent and flavor come from an oil in the leaves, but spearmint is sweeter with a gentler bite. Of the two, this mint is favored for cooking, as its flavor is not overpowering and complements other ingredients well. Spearmint is commonly found as an aromatic in Middle Eastern and Indian cuisine like tabbouleh and pudina rice, as well as in beloved cocktails such as mojitos and mint juleps. Another common use for this herb is in cosmetics such as shampoo, soap, and toothpaste. This practice dates back thousands of years to ancient Greece, where it was used to enhance the aroma of baths, and to the Middle Ages, where the leaves were used in mouthwash. It is compelling that, to this day, the aroma of spearmint is associated with freshness and cleanliness. Spearmint tea is older still than the hygienic practices above, with an unclear origin in pre-history. Steep dried spearmint leaves in hot water and then pour over ice to enjoy this tea as humanity has for millennia.

BH15: Ginger Root Superior Organic (Zingiber officinale)

On a sunny farm at the forest’s edge, long, even rows of what look like stalky shrubs peek out of the soil. It may be difficult to identify this herb by sight, but even from a distance, the familiar peppery fragrance is unmistakable. Beneath the soil, “hands” of ginger lie in the cool earth, waiting to be harvested. Unlike most other herbal teas, rather than using the stem or leaf of the plant, we eat the rhizome (or “hand”), an underground stem that grows in the soil. The ginger plant takes 8-12 months to mature from the day it is planted. A member of the same plant family as cardamom and turmeric, ginger is primarily known for its culinary uses in Indian and South Asian cuisine. The current English name for this plant comes from the middle English word gingivere, but its origins can be traced back over 3,000 years to the Sanskrit word srngaveram, which means “horn root.” Because ginger does not grow in the wild and has been cultivated by mankind since pre-history, its global origins are contested, but the herb was described in ancient Indian, Chinese, and Greco-Roman writings. In medieval times, ginger was a prohibitively expensive European import, reserved for nobility. According to legend, Queen Elizabeth I invented gingerbread men when she instructed the royal bakers to create facsimiles of her guests, using gingerbread, for a banquet. Beyond the holidays, ginger’s increasing popularity as an ingredient in desserts, soups, curry, and candy has solidified it as a grocery staple in many forms: fresh, dried, pickled, and ground. The spicy taste of ginger tea is enhanced when chilled. Pair with lemon juice and zest for a flavorful and hydrating herbal refreshment.

A PERFECT GIFT FOR ANY TIME OF YEAR.

One of the most frequently asked questions that we receive is: “What does the string of letters listed after the name of my favorite tea mean?” Our Valued Customers have long requested that we include an explanation in our quarterly catalog to decode the enigmatic “tea nomenclature,” and we are glad to oblige.

Due to a lack of information on the subject, there is great confusion over one of the simplest of tea terms: OP (Orange Pekoe). Contrary to popular opinion, Orange Pekoe does not refer to a particular flavor, or even to a specific variety or quality of tea. Orange Pekoe is nothing more than a designation of leaf size.

As a result of the manufacturing process, the final product is composed of leaf particles of varying sizes. Because the finer particles steep quickly, the tea is sifted into lots of uniform leaf sizes. Teas designated OP are composed of larger leaf particles or whole leaves that will not pass through a sieve of a particular gauge. BOP (Broken Orange Pekoe) designates a grade that is finer than OP. Grades finer than BOP are called fannings, PF for Pekoe Fannings, and the smallest particles are referred to as dust. Dust grades are used primarily in teabags.

Other letters are often appended to the grade of tea to produce a baffling list of designations, such as SFTGFOP1 (Super-Fine Tippy Golden Flowery Orange Pekoe, grade 1). While there is a general correlation between acronyms and the general appearance and character of the tea, there is no strict correlation between the acronyms and the value or flavor of the tea. While these lengthy acronyms appear on nearly every chest of single-estate tea, the real value of the tea is in its appeal to the palate.
